(2011) Untangle (64-bit) .Q: CakePHP map value to properties I have an array that I want to map into a DB Table containing: id | name | description And I want to map this array into the id column of the table: [value] | [property] "name"|"id" "description"|"id" Is there a way to do this in a single array value? I am currently looping through the whole array and building it with a foreach loop. A: You can do this using the `$this->set()` function. It will return the result as an array with values as the keys and properties as the values. `$data = array(`

'name' => 'name', 'description' => 'description', ); $this->set($data, array('id' => 'id')); Q: RSTP vs BGP What is the difference between RSTP and BGP in terms of configuration complexity? I'm trying to understand where I can use one over the other. A: The purposes and use cases may be different, but I wouldn't class them as "completely different". BGP is optimized for proactive updates (as far as it goes). Thus
